Q: Eliminating intermediate results in a recursive query
In a series of sql query(I am using sqlite), I'd like to eliminate the need to keep certain intermediate results. For example, let's say I have a result set with a list of categories and a list of their children. I would like to generate a hierarchical list of the categories and their children. With intermediate results, the sqlite query is `SELECT * FROM (SELECT (SELECT CATEGORY FROM CATEGORIES) AS TEMP_CATEGORY, (SELECT CATEGORY FROM CATEGORIES WHERE CATEGORY=TEMP_CATEGORY) AS TEMP_CHILD, (SELECT CATEGORY FROM CATEGORIES WHERE CATEGORY=TEMP_CATEGORY) AS TEMP_CHILD1 FROM CATEGORIES) AS TEMP_LIST WHERE TEMP_CHILD0;`
and the result is something like `CATEGORY CHILD -- Parent -- Child -- Parent -- Child -- Parent -- Child -- Child -- Child --`
But I want this to be
`CATEGORY CHILD -- Parent -- Child -- Child -- Child --`
With a single result set, I could do
`SELECT , TEMP_CATEGORY(1+count()), TEMP_CHILD1+(count()), FROM (SELECT CATEGORY, COUNT(*) AS COUNT FROM CATEGORIES GROUP BY CATEGORY) AS TEMP_LIST WHERE TEMP_CHILD0;`
The problem with that is I don't know how to eliminate the need for the intermediate results TEMP_CHILD and TEMP_CHILD1. The final result set has a wide variety of columns(SELECT *). My question is can this be done without having to create an intermediate result set(which would mean
